OVERVIEW

Enhance your knowledge and understanding of the importation and customs processes for humanitarian aid.

A self-paced online course that aims to increase formal training opportunities for humanitarian practitioners to develop their knowledge, skills, and understanding of the importation and customs processes for the cross-border movement of emergency relief aid.

It is designed to equip practitioners with the minimum skills required to handle the difficulties involved with importing and clearing humanitarian aid into affected countries, understand affected countries context specific aspects and the importance of complete and quality documentation, identify involved stakeholders, and understand the information flow between humanitarian organizations and customs administrations. It also sheds light on the challenges raised by the humanitarian community, customs, and other government agencies in the process of clearing consignments to the final beneficiaries.

This course is developed and offered in partnership with the IMPACCT Working Group as a contribution to the humanitarian community.

Introductory Importation and Customs Clearance

METHODS

- Self-paced video lectures
- Self-assessment quizzes
- Expert-led webinars

LEARNING OBJECTIVES
